

A Castle in the Making...

They're Building it
Come See it!

Description

The Ozark Medieval Fortress is a 13th century castle being created using the methods and tools available 800 years ago. Construction has begun and will continue over a twenty-year time span.

Features

Come watch the castle going up one stone at a time and visit with the craftsmen while they work. The craftsmen will be happy to answer questions as part of the experience.

Visit with historians, masons, carpenters and stone carvers dressed in authentic garments as they perform their work building the genuine fortified castle right in front of you. Six 45 ft. high towers, 6 ft. wide walls, and a drawbridge will eventually surround the expansive inner courtyard.

Interpretative Programs and Guided Tours - Workshops - Exhibitions of Catapults - Special Events

- Taking the one-hour guided tour brings you from the origins of fortress castles through a live demonstration of the construction, including the extraction of stone to the raising of the walls.
- Techniques of carpentry, blacksmithing, basket, and rope making are demonstrated.
- After the tour, visitors are free to experience the middle ages at their own pace by visiting the different work stations or strolling through the area learning about such things as medieval textiles and gardening.
- For hands on experience, visitors may carve their own stone, make a rope, try the art of illuminations, or even practice shooting a long bow!
- Custom classes are available by reservation.
